

Connecting you to training resources for your workforce.

Canada-Ontario Job Grant

Skilled employees are the greatest asset of a successful business. Current and relevant employee training ensures that your company continues to thrive and grow in a changing economy. ACCES Employment can assist you with support and funding for your organization's training needs through the Canada-Ontario Job Grant. The grant provides financial support to employers who would like to enroll employees in training programs.

How does it work?

Determine the type of training that is needed for your company

The program is designed to consider the needs of employers and the skills they need for their employees and company to be successful. ACCES Employment can work with you to refine training options for your employees.

Identify the employee(s) that you would like to send for training

Individuals must be residents of Ontario, Canadian citizens, permanent residents or protected persons. Unemployed individuals must be sponsored by an employer (through a permanent or conditional offer of employment).

Identify training opportunities

Training must not exceed one year and must be provided by: Colleges of applied arts and technology; Publicly assisted universities; School boards; Private trainers operating in compliance with the Private Career Colleges Act, 2005; Union-based training centres; Product vendors with manufacturer-recognized training certifications.

Cost sharing for the training

Employers (with more than 50 employees) contribute 1/3 of the cost of the training.

Employers (with less than 50 employees) contribute 1/3 of the cost of training, 50% of which can be in the form of wages to the individual.

COJG will contribute 2/3 of the cost of training (up to $10 000 per individual).
