

Connecting to Careers in Biomanufacturing

Our Connecting to Careers in Biomanufacturing program helps internationally trained newcomers with backgrounds in life sciences secure meaningful employment in Ontario's growing biomanufacturing sector. Delivered in partnership with The Canadian Advanced Therapies Training Institute (CATTI), BioTalent and Toronto Metropolitan University, you'll learn Canadian biomanufacturing industry standards, sector-specific terminology, and effective job search strategies needed for long-term success.

Between 2019 and 2023, the Canadian life sciences industry attracted $25.9 billion in investments across more than 175 companies, reflecting strong investor confidence in the sector's value. Ontario aims to expand the biomanufacturing workforce from 72,000 to 85,000 high-value jobs by 2030, as part of its Life Sciences Strategy.
